Pre-Convention Shabbat in Brookline, MA

For anyone who would like to arrive in the Boston area on Friday, November 4th and spend Shabbat in the Brookline area, there will be an “unofficial” Pomegranate Shabbat based at the Young Israel of Brookline Synagogue. Brookline is about 40 minutes farther east than Westboro, MA, where the Convention will take place beginning on Sunday morning November 6th. The clocks “fall back” that Saturday night, so Shabbat (candle lighting = 5:15 PM) will still be on Daylight Savings Time, but Convention will be on Eastern Standard Time.

The exact details will depend upon how many people are interested—just a few people and I’ll be happy to invite you to my home for meals. More than fit around my table, then we’ll have catered meals at my shul. If you are interested, please indicate your interest on the 2nd side of the pink Registration form and I’ll get back to you with more information, once we know how many people are interested.

There are 2 hotels each about a 7 minute walk to the synagogue, The Holiday Inn at 1200 Beacon Street (which quoted me $159/ nite for a group rate) and the newer Courtyard by Marriott on Webster Street ($143/nite—YI rate). There is also a 9 room converted Victorian house called the “Bed and Bagel” on 17-19 Littell Road (10 minute walk), which has special rates (20% off their regular rates which range from $119-$189 per room) if you mention our synagogue.
